Environmental guidelines

As MTG operates mainly in the service sector, the adverse environmental impacts of many of our operations are limited. However, MTG looks upon environmental issues with gravity and works with preventing environmental exploitation from two perspectives:

- By minimising the adverse impact of our operations through the adoption of best practice in environmental management.
- By collaborating internationally with an environmental organisation to promote environmentally responsible behaviour among the public.

Our environmental policy commits us to:

- complying with all relevant environmental legislation, codes of conduct and other regulatory requirements;
- placing responsibility for our environmental performance with our Board members;
- promoting environmental awareness among our employees through training and participation in environmental initiatives;
- promoting environmental awareness among the public through co-operational projects with environmental organisations;
- managing our environmental effects through implementation of a variety of environmental action programmes;
- reviewing our efforts on a regular basis, and
- continually measuring and monitoring our significant environmental impacts and reporting them publically.
- As part of our responsibility to minimise any impacts, we have devised a list of environmental actions which are to be followed by each company.
